THEY HATE TO LET GO.

The men who are now in a desperate struggle to hold together the wreck of the old Republican party of Nevada are simply the old office holders and their insignificant following.

They have practically run the State for years and sucked all the sap, and it is not surprising that they set up a loud protest when they feel that the Silver Party of Nevada is about to pull their mouths away from the public teat.

The political question is not with them a question of principle, but a question of spoils.

We have no doubt that some Republicans in Nevada are today honest believers in the theory that the Republican party alone is the friend of silver, but they are men who err through ignorance and have been misled by the little coterie of politicians who are now engaged in frantically whipping in the scattered and straggling following that went to the wall in '92.

For this hoodwinked and deluded following, the APPEAL has no harsh word, pity is the only feeling that a contemplation of their course arouses, but when leading politicians openly attempt to convince the people of Nevada that either of the old parties is friendly to silver, they do not deceive even themselves and deserve only to be placed on the pillory of public contempt.

The men who have endeavored to show to the East that the silver sentiment is not nearly unanimous, should be only regarded as enemies of the Commonwealth of Nevada, and traitors within her gates.

When in the last election 7,000 people out of 10,000 expressed their sentiments at the polls, it should have settled the question of how Nevada stood forever, but it has not.

Wall street has issued the edict that no Western State shall ever be unanimous for silver and the gold trust will not be idle this Fall.

It is proposed to teach Nevada and its rebellious sister Colorado a lesson for proclaiming its political independence.

But the people have spoken once and the Silver party of Nevada is only anxious for the battle that comes off in November.

All it asks is a fair count and the protection that the Australian ballot affords the independent voter of Nevada.
